

Questionnaire

Nationality	Occupation	Q1	Q2	Q3	Q4	Q5
		What was the interesting thing to you in this workshop?	What is the most difficult problem regarding "worklife balance" for you or for your country?	How do you or your country tackle with the problem you mention in Q2?	What topic do you like us to consider for our workshop at ICWES17?	Please leave any comments.
US	project management	Learning about worklife balance Challenges from women in different countries and how	Resources to maintain work once starting a family.	Family medical Act
US (Japanese)	Co-op	How women currently are dealing with these issues. Allowing yourself to think about what you want in your life.	Cultural norms & acceptance	Increasing woman perspective	Young women out of college business environment Moving up within company avoid negativity.
US (Chinese)	subsea engineer		Planning time for personal time vs. time spent for work.	child care, family friends
US (Africa)	supervisor	Listening to women explain how they balance work & life	For me, the worklife balance must include a support system & if you have a child make sure you conbalance both.	I just make sure I have a strong support system.	How to improve worklife balance.	Thank you all the information provided.
US	student	Hearing different perspectives on the topic of worklife balance.	women trying to balance work and new family life when child care opinions and limited.	Some companies in the US provide child care services.	Gender equality in engineering.
US (Filipino)	ME student	The importance of the husband's occupation related to traveling. The importance of lactation	Support system of work.	Speak with supervisor to get necessary issues solved.
US (Filipino)	ME student	Speakers from all over the world.	Juggling everything that are important to you.	Getting help from your supports. Follow your heart.
US (Hispanic)	student	Australian and Japanese perspective	Balancing family	I'm not there in my life yet.	N/A but keep the same ladies. They are quite lovely.	Possibly a younger
		Professional wife & professional husband	Knowing when to go home Saying no Extracurricular activities Making time	Working from home (technology)	"Bread-winner" of the family
US	student	trying to figure out childcare when you work out network to help	balancing your career with your partners	Working forwards equality - women careers are just as important as males.	the modern feminism movement.
US	student	Hearing about worklife balance across the globe for women engineers was interesting.	As an engineering student find it hard to make time to care of myself. I'm often in the job or library nights and weekends.	Trying to manage my time challenging I try to surround myself with supportive friends. Having a network of women engineering students is invaluable.
Bangladesh	ME student	Talking about the problems for women after having named and how it is similar for a lot of women all over the world.	when having a kid, how it affects work. Some companies don't accommodate with women who have babies in terms of leave and daycare.	Having organizations that insist on certain policies that ensure women get leave after having a baby.	Talking about women in work, the actual experience.
Pakistani	Biomedical student	I really appreciate hearing about the different cultures also have the same problems with worklife balance.	Balancing the cultural expectations of being a mother and having a career.	There isn't a solution.	Questions asked to women a marriage, children plans during interviews.	Thank you for bringing the different cultures.
US	Civil engineering student	The working woman situation in Japan.	The stereotypical problem Men at work women at home.	slowly working on it
US	Grad student	Australian and Japanese perspective	Balancing family	I'm not there in my life yet.	N/A but keep the same ladies. They are quite lovely.	Possibly a younger perspective on the panelist those who don't have families.
US	student	taking care of children while having a partner who also has a demanding career.	Balancing school while still being able to socialize.	I go to Starbucks to study with my friends.	Balancing relationships while focusing on your career.	I never considered the problem with having kids because I am a student.
US	student	Hearing about the differences between countries.	Stereotype of men working and women	Women taking more initiative in their career.
US	student	It was interesting as a college student, to hear about how worklife balance plays a role in the career of women in engineering	For my personally my biggest problem is balancing my passion for running with my academics and all of my organizations.

We placed this English version without correcting it, though there were some uncertain words.